

GEORGE ALLEN
UNITED STATES SENATOR

November 22, 2002

Election Night was an historic event for America, as our Republican Team was catapulted back into the majority of the U.S. Senate. The true voices of Americans were heard that night, when many entrenched incumbent Democrats were retired and replaced by common-sense Republican candidates.

But the election is not over. And I am making an urgent appeal to you. In Louisiana, thanks to an unusual election law, Republican challenger Suzie Terrell faces incumbent U.S. Senator Mary Landrieu in a run-off election that will occur on Saturday, December 7. It is crucial that Suzie wins this election. And she will if we all make this final effort to help her across the finish line.

Suzie shares my belief in limited government, stronger defense, and lower taxes. We need her voice in the Senate to help advance our positive agenda to move America forward. It is very important that we seize this opportunity to strengthen our majority and ensure that we will be in control of the Senate for years to come. Opportunities like this are few and far between – we must act now.

We must, and will, take advantage of the historic chance that was given to us on Election Day to advance the agenda of President Bush. During Democratic control of the Senate, there were many important issues that were left unresolved. With our new majority we will tackle important appropriations bills, and pass a comprehensive energy package and the President's judicial nominees. I am confident with our new allies in the Senate like Elizabeth Dole, Lamar Alexander, Lindsey Graham and Jim Talent we can focus on working, promoting and advancing a positive agenda for this great nation. We need to add Suzie Terrell to the list of new allies and increase our majority in the Senate.

In the remaining days of Suzie's campaign she must get her message out to all of the good people of Louisiana, but that takes money. You have always been one of my most stalwart and loyal supporters, and while I hate to ask, I need your help one last time this year. Can I count on you again?

I urge you to send your most generous contribution to the Terrell for Senate Campaign in the enclosed envelope. Your help right now could literally be the difference on run-off day. Because of the unusual Louisiana election rules, each individual may contribute up to $3,000, if properly designated. The enclosed information explains further.

Suzie's election will mean additional Republican members of important Senate Committees and help keep the Democrats from causing gridlock in Washington.

Thank you so much for your consideration. Susan and I look forward to seeing you on the trail ahead. Until then, stand strong for freedom!

With kind personal regards, I remain

Sincerely,
